Did Scripture Say the Planet was Flat as Most People Assume and Rant Against Scripture About?

Chris Hadfield, the famous space dude, posted on Google plus today that he wondered why people ever thought the world was flat. It has been assumed and asserted for some time now by modern scholars that the Scriptures are a very primitive and backwards text, and that people in ancient times thought our planet was flat. I stated in response to Chris Hadfield's post that "It should be noted that long before people discovered in our modern age that the world is round, that Scripture had said so! Y'shaiYahu (Isa.) 40:22." Eat that NASA experts. Stop the lies. Scripture was way ahead of our modern age and NASA, and had stated that the world was round/spherical long before our time. Y'shaiYahu (Isa.) wrote "He who dwells (ha-y'shib) on (ayl) the sphere (khoog) of the land (ha arats), and those who dwell (wa-y'sh'biyah) on it are like grasshoppers (ka'khegabim). He stretches out (ha-nutheh) like a curtain (ka-daq) the loftiness (sh'meyim), and spread out (wa-y'metakhem) like a tent (ka'ahayl) to dwell in (la'sh'kat)."

In Y'shaiYahu (Isa.) 40:22 the word for the "sphere" of the planet is "khoog," khet, oo-ah (waw), gam." Quite literally a picture of an outer-lying fence (khet) that is firm (oo-ah), and travelled (gam), in terms of the letters used. Great stuff.
